A Fine Procession

Gen. II. B. Clawson has genuine enterprise and is not afraid to ex-hibit it. He is the author of a novel idea in connection with his business. which he put into exercise on Monday morning. He tendered his Julia Dean car to the fair committee for the use of their band, Mr. Gould supplying four fine horses. The seventh Ward band was placed in the Julia Dean, and Mr. Clawson, intending to exhibit a number of the mnumerable articles which he car-ries in stock, hit upon the plan of forming a procession to accompany the band on its march through the city. The idea was hardly born belore it was put into execution. In a short time a fine procession, headed by the Seventh Ward brass band proceeded down Main street, all the machinery being that of Mr. Clawson. The order of procession was.
